Listen to the tales of
Children and kings.
Telling of a future,
Hoping that it brings,
Wishes that our dreams come true.
Stories we discover in our childhood.
With morals we should,
Try to imbue.

“Once upon a time”
Can seem such innocent words.
Opening the door to wonders.
But “once upon a time”
Leads down a very dark path.
Open the book.
Turn the page.
Dare you to look.
Read of an age,
Where
Fathers and mothers abandon their children
Witches and goblins wander the woods.
And people go missing
And years disappear
And nothing is quite as it seems to be.

Careful of the tales of
Children and kings.
Warning of a future,
Desperate that it brings,
A hope that dreams will come true.
Stories we discover in our childhood.
Lessons to be learnt,
If only we knew...
